

SERMON NOTES:

Questions for Reflection | Acts 17:22-31

For You:

Where do you feel the pull of competing voices right now—and how can you make space this week to hear God's voice?

For You & Your Family:

Where do you feel alone?

Who might God be inviting you to walk with—or to walk alongside?

For Our Church:

How can we be a community where no one walks alone?

Who is one person or family you can encourage this week?

Monday Prayer:

Lord, Thank You that You are never far from us, even in the noise and confusion of life. Remind us this week that we are not alone. Strengthen families, encourage weary hearts, and draw the next generation to You. Anchor our identity in Christ above every competing voice. In Jesus' name, Amen.

Looking forward to next week...

“Your Why: Anchored in Who God Says You Are”

Part 1 of Anchored

Ephesians 2:10; Isaiah 49:1-5

You don't have to invent your why; you receive it from the God who created you, loves you, and sends you into the world.

A NOTE FROM OUR PASTOR

Thank you for worshipping with us here at HRBC. On this Mother's Day, we pause to give thanks for those who have nurtured and guided us, while also recognizing that this day can carry a range of emotions.

In a world filled with constant and competing voices, raising the next generation is both a challenge and a calling. We are reminded that we are not alone—God places us in community to help anchor one another in His truth and love.

Peace be with you,
Pastor Bob Lee
